Boissier : a unique story

Specializing in confectionery and Chocolate maker, Maison Boissier is in line with the history, and perpetuates the legendary know-how of B elissaire Boissier, who offered his delicate creations to the ladies of Paris high society.

It all started with the ingenious confectioner who invented, among other things, the now famous “ball” candy, and who developed the original recipe for glazing chestnuts that gave birth to the very first marron glac e and the famous flowers or fruits chocolate petals.

In 1827, this visionary established a first shop in Paris, a “Boissier” in front of which one might stop one's carriage to stock up some delectable candies.

A faithful Boissier patron, Victor Hugo wrote this famous passage:

“Thanks to Boissier dear doves, happy we fall at your feet, Take down the strong with bombs and the weak with candy...”
